Finding Our Way is a Mental Health in Multicultural Australia (MHiMA) project, in partnership with the Australian Centre for the Moving Image (ACMI), where inspiring personal stories of people living with emotional and mental health issues were created during a four-day workshop led by experienced film-makers. Each participant had an opportunity to write, voice, create and edit their film.

These short films will be screened as part of the Cultural and Global Mental Health Film Initiative of the Centre for Mental Health, a monthly screening of film-documentaries relating to cultural and global mental health. This initiative is free and open to the public.
